There is backlash with everything but specifically in film. We are in the age of social media and everyone has been conditioned into commenting on everything,

ChatFox allows users to make those commentaries during the film on a different platform outside of the social media in hopes of controlling more of the overall narrative, profile, and brand to said company or persons

With the next generation everything is surrounded by social media, with ChatFox devices and software installed onto each chair in movie theaters for customers to login and engage in group or private commentary among friends or with other members of the audience.

Manuscripts to be printed out in photo both style, texted or emailed to ChatBox customers.

The preference such as audience or private chat(s) are made online upon reservation.
